One of the brightest papers on our exchange list is the Mt. Sterling Advocate.

It is a new Democratic journal, and promises to make its mark.

The Democrats of Madison county

are requested by the State Central Committee to assemble at their precinct voting places on Saturday, Sept. 8th, and select a county committee.

AN order has been issued by the Central Committee instructing the Democrats to hold mass meetings in each voting precinct of the several counties of the State on September 8th at 2 p. m., and select members for the County Committees.

CAPT. SAM BROWN, of Somerset, has sent forth a circular announcing himself

a candidate for Sergeant-at-Arms of the Constitutional Convention. One of his claims is here: "I am given: 'In time have belonged to every party and person under the sun, and, having tried

them all to my heart's content, I am now and have been for years, convinced that the perpetuity of our institutions depends solely upon the Democracy taking charge of the government."

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE.

On Friday, "Squire" E. E. Horine held an inquest on the death of the little girl, son of Charles Horine, who had been found dead in a shallow ditch

and a faithful death in falling through a rotten plank in the Kentucky river bridge seventy feet at Hickman. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the evidence and laid a charge of criminal negligence against the managers of the Nicholasville and Louisville

Turnpike Road company. - - - - -

POPULATION.

The "rough count" by the census

commissioners, which is nearly completed, indicates that the total population of the United States is about 61,000,000.

We are increasing very rapidly as a people,

and there is a good deal of space room

in this country yet, and it will be a long time before we reach upon Russia with her 100,000,000 and more, or India with her 220,000,000. China is not far behind

INSANITY FROM GREAT CALAMITIES.

It is interesting to find from the report of the Pennsylvania state committee on lunacy, just printed, that only fifteen cases of insanity can be traced, after extensive correspondence with managers of hospitals and almshouses, which may be referred to the effects of the Johnstown flood. Of these seven were men and eight were women. Of the fifteen three males and four females had been insane prior to the flood, but had been restored and were living in Johnstown when the catastrophe occurred. One of the females had been subject to three previous attacks. Only one of the people made insane was in imminent peril, a woman who floated in a place of safety on a bedstead. Seven of the cases have recovered since under hospital treatment. Of these attacked, acute mania developed in five males and four females; acute melancholia in one

male and one female; acute melancholia

in one male and one female; sub-acute melancholia in one female; and acute melancholia in one female. It is considered probable that among those who perished, frenzy sufficient in intensity to have permanently overthrown reason

may have occurred. But far outnumbering these were the many instances of true

heroism, fortitude and reliance on divine

help in emergency. Of the survivors who miraculously escaped none are known to have become insane from the contemplation of approaching death.

This is altogether a good showing of the solid quality, reserve force and nerve of our population. The report says it strengthened the conviction that "great

and overwhelming trials of life are much less liable to overthrow reason than the continuous worry and attrition of minor evils and unavoidable contact with depressing surroundings."

PARTY POLITICS AND PERSONAL HON-

ESTY.

The Troy Press having called upon the party, "Troy Press" to say whether it

thought Senator Quay to be an honest man, the Union answers: "Party politics has nothing to do with individual honesty." Such an answer is not a reply. The question concerning Mr. Quay is not his politics, but his honesty.

Misuse of public funds is not politics,

and such misuse is the charge against

Mr. Quay. The charge, as made by the Evening post and the World, and not yet answered in any way whatever by Mr.

Quay is this: that between 1870 and 1882,

when he was Secretary of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania he took away

out of the State Treasury, and sent $200,

out of it in stock speculation, and was saved from exposure by the assistance of Senator John Cameron, to avoid the scandal the transaction would bring on the party. This is the charge. If true,

Mr. Quay could not be an honest man.

By a suit for libel, and upon the disposition, the exemplary verdict against the papers would be a public service for which the whole country would be grateful.

This is the charge which, under the circumstances, is practically admitted by science, and the Springfield Union,

being asked if it thinks such a man

honest, answers that such a charge is

"silly blackguarding," that to pay attention to it would be "defiling windmills," and that "party politics has nothing to do with individual honesty." That is as wise as saying, when a grocer is accused of sending his sugar "business integrity

has nothing to do with individual honesty." The Union is a Republican paper, and the Republican party was founded

to rescue a moral wrong, and was described as a party of moral reform. It is one of its moral aims that to misuse the money of other people is politics,

and politics have nothing to do with individual honesty? The Union is a

LOUISVILLE TOBACCO MARKET.

By Glover & Burnett, Louisville Tobacco

Ware-House.

Sales on our market for the week just closed amount to 4,013 hds. with receipts for the same period of 2,897 hds. Sales on our market since January 1st, amount to 101,910 hds. Sales of the crop of 1889, on our market since date, 55,659 hds.

The past week has been almost a repetition of the week previous, very heavy

sales with firm prices for good to fine burleys and also the common grades with color. The latter part of this week, owing to the extremely heavy sales, prices

were irregularly easier for common leaf

lugs and trash not color.

The following quotations fairly represent our market for burley tobacco.

THE OLD SILVER WATCH.

Charles Eames stepped into the office of his friend Bowles, editor of the Glenville Courant.

"How are you, Eames?" asked the editor.

"I ought to feel happy, I suppose," said the young man a little ruefully, "for I've just received notice of a legacy."

"Indeed, I congratulate you."

"Wait till you hear what it is."

"Well, what is it?"

"My Aunt Martha has just died leaving $50,000."

"To you? I congratulate you heartily."

"But she leaves it to a public institution. She leaves me only her silver watch, which she has carried 40 years."

"How is that?"

"She didn't approve of my becoming an artist. She wished me to be a merchant. If I had consoled her wishes I should, doubtless, have been her sole heir. The small legacy is meant more as an aggravation than anything else."

"But you can make your own way."

"I can earn a scanty living at present. I hope to do better by and by. But you know my admiration for Mary Brooks—if I had been Aunt Martha's sole heir I could have gained her father's consent to our marriage. Now it is hopeless."

"I am not so sure of that. This legacy may help you."

"An old watch? You are joking."

"Not if you will strictly observe my directions."

"What are they?"

"Simply this: Agree for one calendar month not to mention or convey the least idea of the nature of your aunt's bequest. I will manage the rest."

"I don't at all know what you mean, Bowles," said the young artist, "but I am in your hands."

"That is all I wish. Now, remember to express surprise at nothing, but let matters take their course."

"Very well."

In the next issue of the Glenville Courant the young artist was surprised to read the following paragraph:

"We are gratified to record a piece of good luck which has just befallen our esteemed fellow citizen, the promising young artist, Charles Eames. By the will of an aunt, recently deceased, he comes into possession of a piece of property which has been in the family for many years. Miss Eames is reported to have left $50,000."

"Really," thought the young man, "anybody would naturally suppose from this paragraph that I inherited my aunt's entire property."

He put on his hat and walked down the street. He met Ezekiel Brooks, president of the Glenville National Bank.

Mr. Brooks beamed with cordiality.

"My dear sir, permit me to congratulate you," he said.

"You have read the Courant?" said Eames.

"Yes, and I am delighted to hear of your good fortune. Can I speak to you on business a moment?"

"Certainly, Mr. Brooks."

"You'll excuse my advice, but I know you are not a business man, while I am. My young man, do you want to make some money?"

"Certainly, I should be glad to do so."

"James Parker has 500 shares of the Wimbledon railway. It stands at 56 a figure much below its real value. But Parker is nervous and will sell out. I want you to buy out his entire stock."

"But, Mr. Brooks—"

"I know what you would say. It may go down, but it won't. I have advised that a speedy rise is almost certain. Buy his stock, and you'll make a handsome thing out of it."

"But how shall I find the money?"

"Of course, you haven't received your legacy yet. I know there are delays. Negotiate about that. Give your note on 90 days, and I'll advance it. You'll sell out before that time at a handsome advance."

"I will place myself in your hands, Mr. Brooks, but you must manage the business."

"Certainly, I shall only want your signature when the documents are made out. By the way, come around and dine with us. I have your other engagement? If Eames had 50 engagements he would have broken them all for the privilege of meeting Mary Brooks. This was the first time he had been invited to the capitalist's table. The fact is, until this morning Mr. Brooks had scarcely vouchsafed him more than a cool nod on meeting; but things had changed or appeared to, and his behavior altered with it. Such is the way of the world."

It was a very pleasant dinner. The young artist remained afterward.

"I have an engagement, Mr. Eames," said Mr. Brooks, "a meeting of the bank directors; but you mustn't go away. Mary will entertain you."

The young man did not go away, and apparently was satisfied by the entertainment he received. He blessed his aunt for her legacy, if only he had procured this afternoon's interview with the young lady he had admired. But it had gained him more. Every four days he received a similar invitation. He could not fail to see that Ezekiel Brooks looked with evident complacency on the good understanding between his daughter and himself.

"What will he say," thought the young man, "when he finds out what sort of a legacy I have received from my aunt?"

Occasionally, too, he felt nervous about his hasty assent to the proposition to buy 500 shares of railroad stock at 56, when he had $50,000. He reckoned up one day what his purchase would amount to, and his breath was nearly taken away when he found it amounted to $250,000. Still, it had been in a manner forced upon him. He asked no questions, but every now and then the old gentleman said:

"All going well? Stock advancing rapidly?"

With that he was content. Indeed he was so carried away by love of Mary Brooks that he gave little thought to any other subject.

One day Mr. Brooks came up, his face beaming with joy.

"Wish you joy, Eames," he said. "Wimbledon's gone up like a rocket to par. Give me authority and I'll sell out for you."

The artist did so, hardly realizing what it meant till three days after he received a little note to this effect:

DEAR EAMES—Have sold your 500 shares of Wimbledon at 101. So you bought at 56. This gives you a clear profit of 45¢ per share, or $22,500. You had better take the ride and reinvest your surplus. Call at my office at once.

Yours very truly, EZEKIEL BROOKS.

Chas. Eames read this letter three times before he could realize its meaning. Could it be that without investing a cent he had made over $20,000? It must be a dream, he thought.

But when he called at the old gentleman's office he found it was really true.

"Mr. Eames, how about this money? Shall I invest it for you?"

"Thank you, sir, I wish you would, I should like a little in hand, however."

"Certainly. Will that answer?"

And the old gentleman wrote a check for $20,000 and placed it in the young man's hands.

"I want more money than he had ever before possessed at one time. This was convincing proof of the reality of his good fortune."

The next day he went to the city and ordered a handsome suit of clothes at a fashionable tailor's. The fact was his old coat was getting threadbare and his overcoat decidedly seedy. While he was about it he bought a new coat and boots as well as other needed articles, and still returned with money enough in his pocket to make him feel rich. He changed his boarding-house, engaged a handsome room at a much nicer place.

"It seems to me you are dashing out, Eames," said his friend the editor.

"You know I've had a legacy," said Eames laughing.

"Begin to think you have," said the editor.

When Eames appeared on the street in his new suit it was confirmation of the news of his inheritance. His removal to a fashionable boarding-house was additional confirmation. It was wonderful how he rose in the estimation of people who had before looked upon him as a shiftless artist.

All at once it occurred to him, "Why shouldn't I propose for Mary Brooks? With $20,000 I could certainly support her comfortably. There was a very pretty cottage and tasteful grounds for sale at $5,000. This would make a charming home."

One morning, with considerable trepidation, young Eames broached the subject to Mr. Brooks.

"No one I should like better for a son-in-law if Mary is willing," was the prompt answer.

Mary was willing, and as there seemed no good reason for waiting, the marriage took place within a few weeks.

"Charles," said his father-in-law, after the young people returned from their wedding journey, "it is time for me to render you an account of your money affairs. I have been lucky in my investments, and I have $31,000 to your credit, or deducting the amount paid for your house, $26,000. By the way, have you received your aunt's bequest?"

"I received it yesterday," said Charles.

"Indeed?"

"Here it is," said the young man, and he produced a battered silver watch.

"To you mean to say that is all she left you?" asked his father-in-law, stupefied.

"Yes, sir."

Ezekiel Brooks whistled in sheer amazement, and his countenance fell. For a moment he regretted his daughter's marriage, but then came the thought that his son-in-law, through a lucky mistake, was really the possessor of quite a comfortable piece of property, which, under his management, might be increased. So he submitted with a good grace and is on the best of terms with his daughter's husband, who is now in Italy with his wife pursuing a course of artistic study. He treasures carefully the old watch, which he regards as the foundation of his prosperity.

TRIMMING A HEDGE.

Hint as to Care and Treatment—Spring is the best time to trim.

We are asked, says Western Rural, by a correspondent, when is the best time to trim a hedge? It probably does not make much difference when it is done. We have trimmed red cedar at all seasons without any ill effect. But spring is the best time for trimming, before the sap starts. It is the custom, however, to propagate the junipers—of which the red cedar is one—from green growing wood taken off in the early part of the summer, which would indicate that such surgery is not harmful at that time; and what trimming an ordinary hedge would require would not be severe enough to do harm at any time. Some judges, however, are not so lenient. They have been too lenient, keep that they are "a sight to behold," and need a vast deal of butchering to bring them into any sort of shape.

Now an evergreen hedge is one of the prettiest things that can be used for ornamental purposes about the home. If it is properly kept it is not so kept. It is about the worst looking thing, being scarcely excelled in bad looks by a ragged looking woodpile. An evergreen tree, growing in a hedge, may be neglected, and still look very well. But not so with evergreens in a hedge. They must be trimmed if we would have them appear beautiful. It is often a source of wonder to us that more farm homes are not adorned with such things as evergreen hedges. They cost but little, either in money or time, and as we said recently in regard to shade trees, they increase the value of the property—indeed, a well kept hedge is much as good buildings do. Red cedar makes a very pretty hedge. As a tree it is a very slow grower; but, as a well known, produces a wood that is very durable. Upon your soil its growth is astonishingly slow. A red cedar tree fifty years old will have grown to measure more than three inches in diameter. But on rich soil they do better.

Farmer Killed by a Mad Horse.

A farmer named H. A. Smith was killed on his place near Mulvany, Kas., by a mad horse. Smith was tying up the fence when it turned on him, seized him by the shoulder and threw him down. Just then the barn door opened, and a horse, which had been eating, started out and ran over the man, hitting, pawing and kicking, until Smith seized a club and with it kill his horse. He was badly exhausted, however, that he died shortly after being discovered, when he had just strength enough to tell of the fight.

CALIFORNIA orange growers report wonderful profits from their groves. The land is held very high, but the profits of an orange grove, if one may believe reports, is immense. Net profits range from $200 to $500 and, and in an exceptional case, to $1,000 on lands held at $200 to $300 an acre, with water.

Cholera Spreading Sicily.

Cholera is spreading steadily along the Mediterranean north of Valencia, where there are ten to twelve new cases daily. The disease has appeared in several villages in the Province of Toledo, and epidemic cases have been discovered in Madrid.

Deaths Reported for Arson.

George Early and Byrd Woods, colored, were hanged at Rocky Mountain, Franklin County, Va., Friday, for arson committed in October last.

Convicts Escaped Arrested.

H. W. Lewis, L. Royce and A. A. Frech, the ex-convicts, were arrested at Minneapolis, Friday, by U. S. authorities charged with conspiracy to commit census frauds. They all gave bail. More arrests are expected.

Brakeman Killed.

Nelson Vilas, a brakeman on the R. & O. railroad, was killed at Moundville, W. Va., by the backing of a chain brake. He fell under the wheels and was horribly mangled.

Danger to Dog Dogs.

An Indianapolis physician reports to the board of health that there is danger of contraction of diphtheria from dog dogs. The disease is becoming epidemic in certain portions of the State.

Lottery Headquarters Raided.

The headquarters of the Louisiana Lottery Company in Washington, was raided by the authorities and books and tickets seized.

England to Evacuate Egypt.

Lord Salisbury, replying to the Porto's note, says the time is ripe to evacuate Egypt.

A MISTAKE of one-third each of corn, oats and barley makes a good ration of grain for the work teams. A little hay or roughage should be added.
